The Handbook of Road Ecology (2015) (www.handbookofroadecology.org) is a comprehensive summary of approximately 30 years of global efforts to quantify and mitigate the impacts of roads, traffic and other linear infrastructure, including railways and utility easements. Edited by Rodney van der Ree, Clara Grilo and Dan Smith, it won the IENE 2016 Project Award and the 2016 Best Edited Book of The Wildlife Society. It is essential reading for those involved in the planning, design, assessment and construction of new roads; the management and maintenance of existing roads; and the modifying or retrofitting of existing roads and problem locations. This handbook is an accessible resource for both developed and developing countries, including government transportation agencies, Government environmental/conservation agencies, NGOs, and road funding and donor organisations.

The Handbook includes:

- Contributions from >100 authors from > 25 countries, including from all continents.
- Each chapter summarizes important lessons and includes further readings and up to date references.
- Highlights principles that address key points relevant to all phases in all road projects.

- Explains best-practices based on a number of tried and tested international case studies.
- Chapters are 'stand-alone', but they also build upon and complement each other; extensive cross-referencing directs the reader to relevant material elsewhere in the book.
